1964 CENTRAL DISTRICT ORCHESTRA

Harry Levenson—Conductor

Fred Orkiseski—Manager

Harry Levenson has had a long and varied experience in the field of music. While a violin student of Cantrelle of the Paris Conservatory he played in the violin section of the Paris Symphony under Eugene Bigot. As Sergeant Levenson in the Army Air Force, he directed a number of productions with all Army casts. Upon his return, he continued his career as Musical Director of the Worcester County Light Opera Club from 1945 to 1951.

In 1947, after having been selected as one of the few conductors in the country to study with Pierre Monteux, he returned to Worcester and organized both the Worcester Youth Orchestra and the Little Symphony. He also studied conducting with Eugene Ormandy and George Szell. After several years the Little Symphony was adopted by the Worcester Orchestra with Harry Levenson as Musical Director and Conductor.
